

We are pleased to announce that AC&M web site has been relaunched today. The new look and feel is there and several useful navigation tweaks and resources are introduced.

Although the web site is still a work-in-progress, several important changes were made. Thus, we launched the data download area, which is the most requested feature by our visitors eager to get our monthly and quarterly releases on Russian and CIS cellular markets as well as other useful information which we distribute for free.

There will be more changes, please check back regularly. We'll keep adding new content and archived news and other information that was available in the earlier versions of our web-site.